

Catherine Wall

Dr Wall is a registered dietitian and research fellow at the University of Otago Christchurch School of Medicine. Catherine has a broad range of clinical dietetic experience and specializes in gastroenterology.

Catherine has a PhD from the University of Otago on nutritional therapy for adults with active Crohn's disease. She spent 18 months further developing her research skills during a postdoctoral fellowship at King's College London. During this time, Catherine developed a nutritional assessment and dietary management of IBD tool and a NHS dietetic business case template. Catherine was also involved in the development of an IBD food-related quality of life intervention. Her current research focus is to adapt her UK work for the NZ health system and provides nutrition expertise for a variety of gastroenterology research projects.

Catherine is a committee member of Dietitians of European Crohn's and Colitis Organisation (D-ECCO) and convener of the Dietitians New Zealand gastroenterology special interest group.
