

The "Checklist" Approach in Primary Care

Have you ever wondered why your carefully thought out systems and processes don't transform into perfect performance every time? We'll explore the basis of memory, and why we all need checklists to support out systems. We'll review a number of systems across the primary care team, and significant events which could have been prevented, were checklists in place.