

Linda Hutchings

An avid reader of non-fiction, a self-confessed shoe fanatic and lover of all things goat, Linda is also one of New Zealand's most respected adult educators. She has run a very successful training business for over 20 years working across the Health, Education and Local Government sectors throughout New Zealand. During this time she has gained a reputation as the 'trainer's trainer' and is equally in demand as a speaker and mentor.

As part of her mission to dramatically improve the development and support of aspiring leaders, she has become somewhat of a zealot where 'practical' leadership skills are concerned. Frequently alarmed by the disjuncture between the philosophy and practice of leadership, she has crafted an approach to leadership training that distils the theories underpinning leadership practice and delivers these as practical, concrete, how-to's.

Linda is also on the Faculty of Thought Leaders Business School in Australia

<https://tlbusinessschool.com/faculty/>